

Consumer Demand For Hair Extensions, Braids, Dreadlocks Increase Hair Loss In Women

Tuesday, 02 June 2009

Braids, Hair Extensions and Dreadlocks have become the latest trend in hair styling and growing in popularity. Improper removal of these hair styles have increased hair loss and hair thinning, according to Tangled Hair Techs of Africa.

Although braids, hair extensions and dreadlocks seem to be the latest trend, they actually date back to 4th Century B.C. with the Egyptians, and have continued to grow strong ever since then. The experts at Tangled Hair Techs believe these styles are more like a hidden conspiracy, which Beyonce and other celebrities have brought out into the open.

Tangled Hair Techs are trained in the safest and easiest hair extension, braid, dreadlock removal system. "As consumer demand for braids, dreadlocks and hair extensions has grown, clients have become less knowledgeable about the methods of proper removal processes," says Sheila Smith, Lead Educator. "Paris Hilton has her own hair extension line of products that don't provide an effective Removal System for the hair."

Some hair extension, braid or dreadlock methods can last in the hair for 4 months, and up to two years. Clients try to remove these hairstyles with homemade remedies, which cause serious damage, hair loss, and in some cases severely tangled or matted hair.

"When a woman's hair becomes seriously tangled or matted, they become so scared because they don't want to cut their hair. Unfortunately they allow their hair to stay this way for weeks at a time-only for their hair to get worse. This will begin to affect the hair follicles-which can lead to Alopecia." According to Tangled Hair Techs, Take Down Remover trained experts in the technique of removal, de-tangling and restoration.

"Women's hair loss is much more common than most people realize," According to Dr. Bauman of Bauman Medical Group in Boca Raton, Florida, a top U.S. expert on female hair loss who's treated hundreds of women over the last 10 years, a leading U.S. hair restoration physician. Women have a 35-percent chance of experiencing hair loss by age 50, but the condition can occur anytime after puberty.

The need for effective human hair extension, braid and dreadlock removal has grown enormously because nearly one out of every three women worldwide suffers from some sort of hair loss, as well as the emotional distress that it causes. Tangled Hair Techs provide specialty extension removal services for: (A) anyone who cannot grow their hair for any reason; (B) people with thin and fine hair; (C) bad haircut or destruction during color processes and/or highlights; (D) people with mild alopecia; and (E) cancer survivors growing out their hair.

"Women call me in fear, depressed with tears, self blame and loss of self esteem because they have been concealing knots or clumps of matted hair -i.e. 'birds nest' in their hair for weeks and they don't want to go bald" says Jeanene Barrett, Educator for Tangled Hair Techs.

Tangled Hair Techs are the leading experts trained in the technique of Take Down Removal System of de-tangling severely matted hair, dreadlocks, tangled hair clumps, and "Birds Nests" Syndrome. Their mission is to save hair and preserve your God given beauty. They are pioneers in the development of tangled hair removal services and training.

In addition, Take Down Products Inc. is the first company to offer hair extension, braid, dreadlock and matted or tangled hair removal training classes worldwide. They are the only company that has revolutionized the industry by mastering more than 20 different braid, hair extension and dreadlock removal techniques. Learn about the art of hair extensions, braid and dreadlock removal at: www.takedownproducts.com.